To Whom It May Concern,

Please consider this recommendation for Alexandra Dyer, a colleague seeking a full-time teaching position. During the past spring semester, Alex and I have team taught in an internship program for high school seniors. In addition to teaching the social studies component of the twelfth grade course, she also instructed courses in American History, co-sponsored our graduation project program, and assisted in placement and monitoring of student interns. Alex fulfilled all of her roles and responsibilities in a dedicated and professional manner.

Even though Alex is new to the profession, she has demonstrated a strong ability to devise creative and engaging lesson plans for honors as well as special needs students. Initially, she develops an encouraging and caring rapport with her students, and then consistently leads them to understanding and mastery. Her confident and personable approach to teaching inspires her students to strive for excellence.

Having taught at the high school level for over thirty years, I recognize and appreciate the characteristics of successful teachers. Miss Dyer possesses the mature approach and professional acuity usually found in more experienced teachers. When combined with her creativity, enthusiasm, and dedication, it is quite evident that Alex Dyer would be a major asset to any academic staff.

Sincerely,

Guy Florentino
